The Bay of Fires (Indigenous name: Iarapuna) is a bay on the northeastern coast of Tasmania, extending from Binalong Bay to Eddystone Point. Its name refers to the Aboriginal fires spotted by Captain Tobias Furneaux when he sailed past in 1773, but it could also apply to the brilliant orange lichen that grows on the granite boulders lining the bay.

"I like wine and I like art, a lot of people do. It's just that I get paid. And at Moorilla and MONA we've taken our passions a bit further than most. We're more than just a winery and more than just an art museum. The two combined give you an experience like no other. Where else can you sip wine sitting on a sheep whilst floating on a boat down a river to an improbable world of important things?"
